PRES. COOLIDGE SIGNS CRUISER BILL TODAY

AUTHORIZES CONSTRUCTION OF 15 SHIPS

MEASURE ALSO COVERS AN AIR-PLANE CARRIER FOR THE NAVY

HIS SIGNATURE TO LEGISLATION ENDS CONTROVERSY OF OVER YEAR

Washington, Feb. 13. — (UP) — President Coolidge signed the cruiser bill today authorizing construction of 15 cruisers and one modern airplane carrier for the navy.

His signature to the legislation ended a controversy of more than a year on whether the United States needed additional fighting craft for its national defense.

The president signed the bill with little ceremony. He was alone in his office when he affixed his signature, 20 minutes after a conclusion of a conference with leaders of the house and senate on ways and means to provide the $50,000,000 needed for the building program in this and the next fiscal year.

The final obstacle in the path of the bill was removed at the White House conference this morning between the president, Vice-President-elect Curtis, Senator Robinson, democratic leader, and Senator Hale, chairman of the naval committee; Speaker Longworth, Republican Leader Tilson of the house and Democratic Leader Rep. Garrett.

The president is understood to have stated emphatically that legislative appropriations for the next fiscal year, ending June 30, 1930, would have to be rigidly held down if the cruiser fund were to be provided under the present budget.

A few minutes after the congressional leaders left the White House Mr. Coolidge called his secretary. When the secretary answered, the president handed him the signed cruiser bill.

Construction of the new cruisers still will leave the United States behind Great Britain and Japan in proportion to the agreed 5-5 naval ratio. With the 15 proposed vessels the United States will have 33 cruisers, Great Britain 63 and Japan 33.

MINNESOTANS TO ATTEND INAUGURATION OF HERBERT HOOVER

Minneapolis, Feb. 13. — (UP) — Plans for the departure of Minnesotans to the inauguration of Mr. Hoover at Washington, were announced today by state republican leaders.

The Gopher special will leave the Twin Cities on the evening of Friday, March 1. After celebrations in Chicago the journey will be resumed on Saturday arriving in Washington Sunday. Prominent Minnesotans in Washington, including Secretary Kellogg, Associate Justice Butler and others will be guests of honor at a state dinner given by the Gophers at the Willard hotel on Sunday.

The inaugural on March 4 will occupy the entire day of the Minnesota delegation. After sight-seeing tours on Tuesday the Minnesotans will return in small groups.

MOTHER IN CELL NEAR WHERE SON WILL BE HANGED

San Quentin State Prison, Calif., Feb. 13. — (UP) — When Gordon Stewart Northcott is hanged for the murder of three boys his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, will be in a cell not far from the gallows.

Mrs. Northcott was informed yesterday that her son had been sentenced to death. She betrayed little emotion, Warden James Holohan said. Mrs. Northcott is serving a life sentence for the confessed murder of another boy on the ranch.

Northcott and his mother probably will see each other today, for the first time in several weeks.

SENATE IMMIGRATION COMMITTEE STAND

Washington, Feb. 13. — (UP) — A poll of the senate immigration committee taken by Chairman Johnson today showed a majority opposed to the proposal for another year's delay in applying the national origins provisions of the immigration act. The poll was taken on the pending Nye resolution which will not be reported to the senate in view of the committee's action.

Teutons Plead Allies Set Prosperity too High

'ECHO' SYSTEM TO DETERMINE PLANE POSITION

Chicago, Feb. 13. — (UP) — The Guggenheim foundation here is conducting experiments which would make it possible to determine the position of an airplane by the "echo" system, such as now employed in finding the depth of the ocean.

The instruments which the foundation hopes to perfect, would enable a plane to determine its position from the ground, and would eliminate the present altimeter, which is not always accurate in bad weather.

Ships employ an instrument which by radio telegraphy send sound waves to the bottom of the ocean, the second echoing back through the instrument and being translated into feet and inches.

ART GOEBEL PLANS FLIGHT AROUND WORLD

IS TO BE A NON-STOP 5-DAY JOURNEY IN AMPHIBIAN SHIP

EXPECTS TO REFUEL IN AIR, TO START FROM WICHITA NEXT JULY

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 13. — (UP) — Art Goebel, winner of the Dole flight to Honolulu in 1927, is planning a non-stop, five-day flight around the world, a copyrighted article in the Illustrated Daily News said today.

The News said the flight would be made in an amphibian ship which would refuel in the air. The trip would start from Wichita, Kansas, next July, the course being north-east across the United States and Canada, the article said.

Goebel plans to leave the North American continent at Labrador, touching the southern tip of Greenland, Iceland and proceeding over the west coast of Alaska and finally across Canada and back to Wichita. He would refuel in Labrador, Norway, Omak and Lake Baikal in Siberia, Okhotsk on Okhotsk sea, near East Cape on the Bering sea and finally at Prince Rupert, Canada.

The trip would cover 18,000 miles and would take about 125 hours. The article quoted Goebel as saying the Knoll Aircraft Corporation of Wichita is constructing the amphibian and the refueling planes. Financial backing of the flight is being kept secret.

Goebel has been confined here for several months following an attack of appendicitis.

Gov. and Mrs. Christianson to Attend Inauguration

St. Paul, Feb. 13. — (UP) — Governor Theodore Christianson announced today that he and Mrs. Christianson will attend the inauguration of President-elect Hoover at Washington on March 4.

MARDI GRAS WINDS UP IN FATAL REVELRY

New Orleans, Feb. 13. — (UP) — A night of care-free revelry—the final festivities of mardi gras—had passed today, leaving in its wake six dead, a score of injured, and more than 150 persons in jail, charged with being intoxicated.

King Rex abdicated his throne early today, after a brilliant final parade and three colorful balls for the merry-makers. The six weeks season of festivities in connection with the mardi gras was closed.

The city turned to the burial of its dead, the caring for its injured, and the trial of those accused of disturbing the peace by making merry while under the influence of intoxicants.

The dead were Harry J. Laux, 38, who fell from a float in the parade; Mrs. Margaret Wappler, 52, killed by an automobile in the traffic; Mrs. Elizabeth James, 42, killed when her automobile collided with a carnival truck, and three negroes shot to death during a brawl.

Believed Wedding of Col. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow May Be Held in Mexico

ENGAGEMENT NEWS HERALDED TO THE WORLD

BRIDE-TO-BE IS DAUGHTER OF AMBASSADOR TO MEXICO

IS A QUIET, HOME-LOVING GIRL OF SIMPLE TASTES; INTELLECTUAL TYPE

Mexico City, Feb. 13. — (UP) — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh may come to Mexico City late this month and be re-united with his fiancée, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, many in the capital predicted today.

Lindbergh was invited three weeks ago to open a new air mail route from Brownsville, Tex., to the capital. While so far no acceptance has been received, yesterday's announcement of his engagement to the second daughter of United States Ambassador Dwight Morrow caused the belief that he would combine personal and aviation affairs, as he has done in the past, and visit the Morrow home for a week or more.

News of the engagement was carried on the front pages of today's newspapers. It was believed the wedding would be held in Mexico City, probably in the beautiful emerald patio, where Lindbergh was received by Ambassador Morrow on his first visit here in December, 1927, during his good-will tour.

Mexico City, Feb. 13. — Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, the quiet, home-loving girl who is to marry the world's most famous flier, went about her normal life today ignoring the fact that the chief topic of discussion among millions of people was her romance with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Miss Morrow and her family, beyond the bare announcement of the engagement made yesterday by Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, indicated plainly that public curiosity was not to be satisfied.

Mexico City society was chiefly interested in the belief that the wedding would be held here, probably in

SALVATION ARMY HIGH COUNCIL TO HEAR BOOTH

Sunbury, Eng., Feb. 13. — (UP) — The Salvation Army high council convened here shortly before noon today to hear Gen. W. Bramwell Booth's representative answer charges that the general is physically unable to hold office.

The council was expected to proceed with its adjudication on Gen. Booth's fitness after the representative, W. A. Jowitt, king's counsellor, presents his arguments.

FLIERS LOSE CHANCE AT ALTITUDE MARK

STEVENS AND JOHNSON ASCEND TO 39,000 FEET, GAS RUNS OUT

FORCED TO LAND AT ANOTHER PLACE, LOWEST TEMPERATURE 76 BELOW ZERO

Columbus, O., Feb. 13. — (UP) — Cheated out of an official altitude record for airplanes by being forced to land at Norton Field here, Capt. A. W. Stevens and Lieut. Harry Johnson will make another effort as soon as possible.

The two army fliers took off from Dayton, Ohio, yesterday and ascended to 39,000 feet. Their gasoline supply gave out and they were forced to land here.

This automatically barred them from official recognition by the National Aeronautical association whose rules specify landings must be made at the place the plane took off.

The fliers were in an Army X-CO-5 plane equipped with a refined supercharger. The official altitude mark is 38,420 feet, established by Lieut. C. Champion on July 25, 1927.

The fliers reported they ran into temperatures of 76 degrees below zero. They wore electrically heated gloves and goggles over face masks.

STEPS TO CURB SPECULATIVE TENDENCIES

SENATE SURVEYS COTTON AND GRAIN FUTURES MARKETS

UPROAR CONTINUES OVER DECLINES IN STOCK VALUES

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 13. — Steps to curb the speculative tendencies of the cotton and grain futures markets were contemplated in the senate today while the uproar continued over the recent decline in stock values.

Republican leaders are planning to pass the Vinson bill from the house, regulating practices on the grain and cotton exchanges in preference to the pending Caraway bill which might force prohibition of the exchanges.

While the bill is being debated, the senate is awaiting word from the federal reserve board as to what legislation might be enacted by congress to put even more far-reaching restrictions on the stock market.

Also it has before it the Shipstead resolution asking the board about shipments of gold and their relation to the credit situation, particularly with reference to the recent curtailment of shipments from England and the resultant contraction of money market conditions.

Action likewise is being demanded on the LaFollette resolution for more information from the board along the same lines.

There is no possibility of control legislation at this session, but the situation appears to be ripe for laying the groundwork for future legislation, just as the ground work for the Vinson bill was laid in congress quietly a year ago.

The senate foreign relations committee met on routine business but its members discussed privately the Capper resolution proposing sanctions of embargoes to "put teeth" into the Kellogg anti-war treaty. No action is contemplated.

GALES PILE UP MOUNTAINOUS SEAS IN PACIFIC

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 13. — (UP) — Gales piled up mountainous seas in the Pacific today, adding further to the anxiety over the safety of four vessels.

The freighter Alloway called for aid yesterday and the Montauk rushed to her assistance. The crew of the Alloway, with the exception of one unidentified man, was removed to the Montauk.

The Montauk took the Alloway in tow but reported later that a violent storm had parted the tow line. The freighter Meiyo Maru ran aground off Uma island and was helpless.

The coast guard cutter Chelander was standing by, unable to aid the Meiyo Maru because of the pounding waves.

DEATH TOLL OF EUROPE'S COLD WAVE NOW 87

MANY OTHER DEATHS RUMORED IN ROMANIA, SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM

GERMAN BATTLESHIPS ANSWER DISTRESS CALLS OF THIRTY STEAMERS IN BALTIC

London, Feb. 13. — (UP) — The death toll from Europe's record-breaking cold wave mounted today with 87 deaths reported since Saturday and many other deaths rumored in Roumania, Switzerland and Belgium.

The German battleships Schleswig-Holstein and Elsass were sent into the Baltic sea to answer distress calls from thirty steamers trapped by ice.

A kypsy tribe of 34 men, women and children were reported frozen to death near Lubline, Poland, where they had camped. Five smugglers were buried in an avalanche of snow and ice as they operated near the Brenner Pass.

Forty-eight other deaths in various parts of Europe including several who were eaten by starving wolves, were reported earlier.

Several of the icebound steamers reported food supplies were low. A hundred passengers aboard a Simplon line train running between Vevey, Switzerland and Montreux narrowly escaped injury when the rails were cracked by frost and the train left the track.

Many trains in Roumania were buried beneath the snow. Engineers and firemen were frozen to death and it was feared some of the passengers might die from exposure.

Wolves, their food supplies cut off by the cold, came out of the wilderness of Hungary in increasing numbers to menace travellers along the highways.

Numerous deaths from influenza and pneumonia also were reported from Belgium. A coal shortage threatened Berlin today and the price of food was rising.

The liner Leviathan was late at Southampton and sent a radiogram that it was battling heavy seas and a snowstorm. The visibility was low.

Many thrilling sea rescues occurred off English coast where shipping was disrupted extensively and many small vessels went aground during snowstorms. Scores of motor cars were stalled on highways.

A hearse with its coffin was abandoned by mourners beside a road near London when they found it impossible to reach the cemetery because of snow.

London, Feb. 13. — Like the devastating plagues of the middle ages, Europe has been stricken by the deadliest winter in living memory.

Storms, cold and disease have killed more than 10,000 persons so far, reliable statistics gathered by the United Press in 11 countries showed today, with indications that the toll already may have reached 20,000.

Yet the intense cold that has settled on the continent from the Siberian steppes to the Mediterranean has only now attained its peak of intensity. Middle Europe experienced temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero.

GERMANS DISPUTE REPORT MADE BY GILBERT

COMMISSION OF REPARATION EXPERTS IN SESSION AT PARIS

BRIEF OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE ISSUED AFTER MORNING SESSION

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Feb. 13. — Germany's plea that her economic condition is not as prosperous as claimed by the allies was set forth again today before the commission of reparations experts.

A brief official communiqué issued after the morning session indicated that the report of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general of reparations, was being disputed by the German delegates.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank and chief German delegate, continued his presentation of Germany's case that he started yesterday. The official communiqué said:

"A brief official communiqué issued after the morning session indicated that the report of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general of reparations, was being disputed by the German delegates. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank and chief German delegate, continued his presentation of Germany's case that he started yesterday. The official communiqué said:

Owen D. Young, chairman of the conference and unofficial American delegate, read a message from Vice-President Charles G. Dawes acknowledging the conference's message of greeting and congratulation.

"Dawes cable concluded: 'The world is confident of the experts' high purpose and competence, and awaits hopefully the consummation of their great work so vital to the world's welfare.'

Dr. Schacht stressed Germany's condition as a result of four years under the functions of the Dawes' plan, German official sources said. His observations still emphasized the general tax burdens of Germany and clarified the points he broached at yesterday's sessions.

Dr. Albert Voegler and Dr. Kastl, members of the German delegation, frequently replied to the running fire of questions of the other delegates.

Probably it will be some time yet before events will have proceeded far enough to invite presentation of the allies' positions, spokesmen said, indicating that the present procedure may continue for some time with the Germans carrying out a well-considered plan of a comprehensive expose of her financial and economic position.

OFFICER EXONERATED IN THE SHOOTING OF SALOON PROPRIETOR

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 13. — (UP) — Patrolman William Detert has been virtually exonerated in the shooting of Anton Dudzinsky, a saloon proprietor.

A coroner's jury decided that Detert's weapon had been discharged accidentally while the patrolman was engaged in the performance of duty. Dudzinsky was shot early Sunday during a brawl that followed an attempt of officers to take "evidence" from his saloon.

Diseases, which were responsible for approximately 2,500 deaths in France alone and 2,100 in 107 leading cities of England and Wales.

At least 250 were drowned in shipwrecks in the 11 countries surveyed, while more than 100 were frozen to death. Others were eaten by wolves, made bold by hunger.

The cold broke all records, or records of many years, in nearly all countries. Hospitals everywhere were overcrowded. In some countries, notably Belgium, barracks were converted into hospitals.

Here is airplane view of the Broadway Limited, fast Chicago-New York train, after derailment near Hobart, Ind. Though the train was speeding at the rate of 55 miles per hour when a defective wheel flew off and seven cars left the track, all eighty passengers miraculously escaped injury.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the conference and unofficial American delegate, read a message from Vice-President Charles G. Dawes acknowledging the conference's message of greeting and congratulation.

"Dawes cable concluded:

"The world is confident of the experts' high purpose and competence, and awaits hopefully the consummation of their great work so vital to the world's welfare."

Dr. Schacht stressed Germany's condition as a result of four years under the functions of the Dawes' plan. German official sources said. His observations still emphasized the general tax burdens of Germany and clarified the points he broached at yesterday's sessions.

Dr. Albert Voegler and Dr. Kastl, members of the German delegation, frequently replied to the running fire of questions of the other delegates.

Probably it will be some time yet before events will have proceeded far enough to invite presentation of the allies' positions, spokesmen said, indicating that the present procedure may continue for some time with the Germans carrying out a well-considered plan of a comprehensive expose of her financial and economic position.

MINNESOTA RURAL CREDIT DEPARTMENT IS IMPORTANT ONE

IF CLOSED NOW STATE WOULD LOSE NEARLY $10,000,000

ANNOUNCEMENT WAS MADE BY CHAIRMAN ROCKNE OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE

St. Paul, Feb. 13.—(UP)—If the Minnesota rural credit department were closed now the state would lose nearly $10,000,000, Senator A. J. Rockne, chairman of the senate finance committee, announced today.

The Zumbrota senator based his statement on a report made to him by the department in answer to 19 questions embodied in a senate resolution.

Senator Rockne declared that a hasty study of the report revealed among other things, that: Loans of $9,313,300 are delinquent out of $44,984,776 outstanding loans. Loss of between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 would be suffered by the state if the loans were sold to banks.

The department has foreclosed 1179 loans on a total of 226,272 acres, having acquired title to 767 farms with 150,597 acres.

The department's average monthly expense during the past year has been $11,311 while the average income was $29,924.

The total debt of the department as of Jan. 1, 1929, was $50,250,000. An operating profit of $829,783 has been shown by the department since its operation.

Senator Rockne declared that the report was asked of the department in an effort to learn whether it had outlived its usefulness. Should a thorough study of the report convince him that banks could better serve the needs of the farmers, Rockne said, the discontinuance of the credit department will be asked.

A NEW THEATRE

A new theatre for Brainerd has been the subject of more or less discussion for some time. About a year ago an authorized representative of the local theatre interests made a rather definite promise before the Chamber of Commerce, that the situation would be remedied to the satisfaction of the Brainerd public. Nothing has developed.

In step with numerous other improvements now being brought about to make Brainerd a better town in which to live, the theatre subject has again been revived. A special committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been appointed. This committee has started functioning and is willing to devote some time and study as seems necessary to bring about the desired results.

Public opinion, however, is a powerful influence. It is a means of correcting undesirable conditions in any business. I, as a member of the Chamber of Commerce theatre committee would like to feel the pulse of the Brainerd public on this subject. Are the citizens of Brainerd satisfied with the present theatre accommodations? Is the future betterment and expansion of Brainerd dependent to a large extent upon our ability to cater to the demands of the tourists from a recreational standpoint? If so, is not an up-to-date and modern theatre a necessary form of recreation.

Let us have expressions from you through this column on the theatre situation. State frankly your views. In my opinion the intensiveness with which the movement is pushed will be in direct ratio to the encouragement given the committee through the columns of this paper.

FIVE WOMEN GIVEN A NEW LEASE OF LIFE

EXPECTED TO DIE WITHIN YEAR BECAUSE OF SUPPOSED RADIUM POISONING

HAD "POINTED" TINY BRUSHES WITH LIPS TO PAINT LUMINOUS WATCH DIALS

By HARRY R. ZANDER (United Press Staff Correspondent) Copyright 1929 by United Press. New York, Feb. 13.—(UP)—Five young New Jersey women who were expected to die within a year because of supposed radium poisoning have been given new hopes of prolonged life by a new scientific opinion, the United Press learned today.

The five young women who "pointed" tiny brushes with their lips to paint luminous dials upon watches which American soldiers were to wear into the trenches of France in 1917 and 1918 were doomed by science to die.

Scientists said the infinitesimal portions of radium which they had absorbed had attached themselves to their bones and were breaking down the red and white corpuscles of the blood through a terrific bombardment of alpha rays. It was described as a condition which could not be cured.

But now science has made a second report. It may no longer have been mesothorium, which although 20 times more radio-active than radium, is soluble while radium salts are not. The mesothorium, dissolved in time through the processes which science knows, may be eliminated from the bodies.

The U. S. Radium Corporation, for whom they had worked when they contracted their ailments, settled upon each of them $10,000 and a pension of $50 a month.

Dr. Robert E. Humphries of the Orthopedic hospital at Newark, N. J., who has treated them since their symptoms first began to manifest themselves told the United Press he has hopes that their meager expectancy of life last summer may be indefinitely prolonged.

He bases these hopes on the theory that mesothorium and not radium is causing their continuous torture.

The five women are Miss Grace Fryer, Mrs. Albina Larice, and Mrs. Quinta McDonald, Orange, N. J.; Miss Katherine Schaub, Newark, and Mrs. Edna Hussman, Hillside, N. J.

BELIEVED WEDDING OF LINDBERGH AND MISS ANNE MORROW MAY BE HELD IN MEXICO CITY

the spring. The Morrrows, however, gave no hint.

News that Col. Lindbergh, the taciturn, efficient idol of the air who was considered girl-shy, had become engaged to Miss Morrow, came as a complete surprise. Ambassador Morrow unmoned the press and issued the following statement:

"Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow have announced the engagement of their daughter, Anne Spencer Morrow, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

Ambassador Morrow would not amplify the statement, although he was obviously pleased to make it. Rumors have been circulated for months that Lindbergh was to marry Miss Morrow or her older sister, Elizabeth, but were consistently denied by friends of the family and ignored by the Morrrows.

The girl who has won the heart of the man who has caused probably more feminine flutter than anyone in this age, not even excepting the Prince of Wales, seems ideally suited to one of Lindbergh's temperament.

She shares his dislike of ostentation and is of the studious, intellectual type.

Miss Morrow is 22 and Lindbergh 27. Her dark hair is unbobbed and frames an attractive face with dark blue eyes. She is slender and about five feet four, reaching only to the shoulder of her tall husband-to-be.

Miss Morrow is quiet and self-contained. She reads much and has learned Spanish fairly well.

Social and diplomatic functions have little attraction for the bride-to-be, and she appears in public only at the weekly receptions at the embassy.

Miss Morrow and Lindbergh have known one another a year and two months, and while their courtship could not be called "whirlwind," they have had comparatively little time together.

They first met on Dec. 14, 1927, when Lindbergh made a non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City on his good will tour of Central and South America.

They met several times in the United States during the ensuing year and again last November, when Lindbergh flew here from the state of Chihuahua.

Pan-American Airport, Miami, Fla., Feb. 13.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left here at noon today on a rescue mission.

The Sikorsky amphibian which he piloted from Havana earlier in the day to complete the first round-trip on the Canal Zone mail route, was turned southward to search for a missing plane owned by Richard Hoy, millionaire sportsman.

Lindbergh planned to fly over the Florida Keys where the craft, an amphibian, was believed forced down. With him were Col. John Hambleton, Pan-American official and a mechanic.

The missing plane, piloted by Lt. Steven Calloway and with one passenger, R. I. Duston, on board, left Havana yesterday for Miami.

The girl who has won the heart of the man who has caused probably more feminine flutter than anyone in this age, not even excepting the Prince of Wales, seems ideally suited to one of Lindbergh's temperament. She shares his dislike of ostentation and is of the studious, intellectual type.

Miss Morrow is 22 and Lindbergh 27. Her dark hair is unobbed and frames an attractive face with dark blue eyes. She is slender and about five feet four, reaching only to the shoulder of her tall husband-to-be.

Miss Morrow is quiet and self-contained. She reads much and has learned Spanish fairly well.

Social and diplomatic functions have little attraction for the bride-to-be, and she appears in public only at the weekly receptions at the embassy.

Miss Morrow and Lindbergh have known one another a year and two months, and while their courtship could not be called "whirlwind," they have had comparatively little time together.

They first met on Dec. 14, 1927, when Lindbergh made a non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City on his good will tour of Central and South America.

They met several times in the United States during the ensuing year and again last November, when Lindbergh flew here from the state of Chihuahua.

Pan-American Airport, Miami, Fla., Feb. 13.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left here at noon today on a rescue mission.

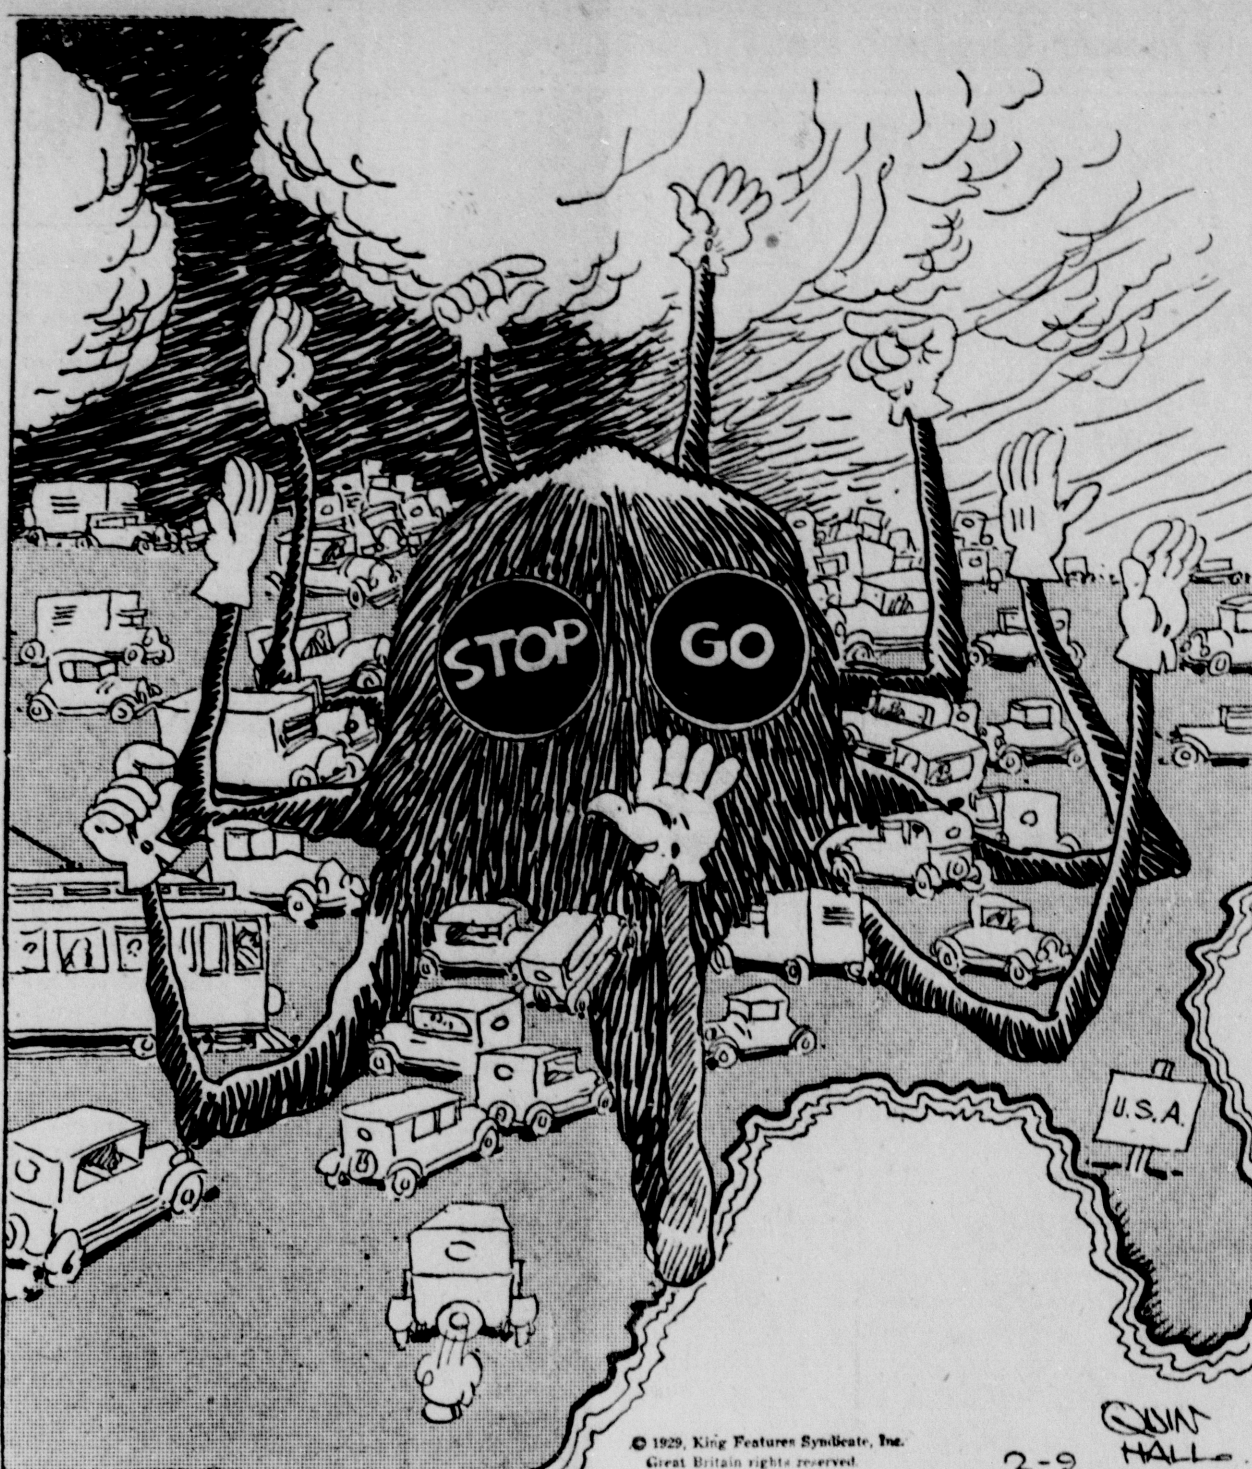

The Sikorsky amphibian which he piloted from Havana earlier in the day to complete the first round-trip on the Canal Zone mail route, was turned southward to search for a missing plane owned by Richard Hoyt, millionaire sportsman.

Lindbergh planned to fly over the Florida Keys where the craft, an amphibian, was believed forced down. With him were Col. John Hambleton, Pan-American official and a mechanic.

MARKING ROOFS FOR AERIAL NAVIGATION GUIDES

THE Chamber of Commerce recently named a committee to see about marking a suitable roof in Brainerd with the city's name, to aid aerial navigation. This is a commendable undertaking and it is hoped something will be done shortly.

Authoritative information as to proper marking can be gained from a letter recently sent by Edsel B. Ford of the Ford Motor Company to Walter P. Tyrholm, their local dealer. Proper marking is of untold benefit to the air mail pilots, as well as military and civilian pilots traveling across the United States in every direction.

The smaller the town, the greater the need for adequate identification as the small town itself offers little means of identification from the air. The selection of the building to be marked is largely a matter of local conditions and availability. The essential points to be considered are the ease with which the roof can be seen from the air and the location of the building. The roof should be on a building prominently situated. Buildings over which smoke hangs should be avoided.

The railroad station in some cases lends itself ideally to roof marking. The roof selected should preferably be of tile, shingle, tin or other metal, or of slate. A simple block letter in chrome yellow with a dull background, preferably black, should be used in all signs whether painted directly on the roof or not. White paint may be used instead of chrome yellow, but the Department of Commerce prefers the use of chrome yellow as its visibility is slightly greater. The letters should be from ten to twenty feet in height and in no case less than six feet high. The smaller the letters, the more difficult it is to read the name of the town from a safe altitude. A space of one-fourth the height of the letters should be used between the letters.

Beside the name of the town or city, the marking should include an arrow of sufficient size to be easily seen and pointing due North with the letter "N" under or over the arrow shaft. This directional arrow is important as it makes it possible for the pilot to orient himself and determine his directions accurately.

If the town or city has an airport, a smaller arrow in addition to the arrow pointing North may be added. This arrow should point to the airport and will be of much assistance to the pilot in locating the airport. If the airport arrow is used, the numeral designating the number of miles to the airport from the building should be used above the arrow and the letter "M" designating miles placed below the shaft of the arrow. This is the conventional airport designation and makes it plain to the pilot that the arrow designates an airport and gives him the direction and distance.

EUROPE FAILS TO COMMENT

THE European press has paid relatively little attention to the approval of the Kellogg pact by the United States senate. There are two reasons. In the first place, for European countries the signing of a treaty is the most important step. If a treaty is submitted to parliament for debate—which is not a legal requirement—the only way to halt ratification would be to vote the government out of office. Such procedure would be unusual. In the second place, there was hope in some European circles that the senate would either disapprove the treaty or load it down with reservations strong enough to make it ineffective. That would have provided one more opportunity for denunciation of the United States and charges of American insincerity. Some European papers said the usual things anyhow, from force of habit. But on the whole, the step in establishing the treaty which is regarded in the United States as of such vital importance created little comment.—Mankato Free Press.

BILLION-DOLLAR COMPANIES

JOHN F. SINCLAIR in the American Review of Reviews: Before the war there were no billion dollar corporations in the world. Only one—the United States Steel corporation—approached it. Now there are nine of these corporations with invested capital of $1,000,000,000 each.

Here they are: United States Steel corporation, American Telephone & Telegraph company, Southern Pacific company, Pennsylvania Railroad company, New York Central railroad, Standard Oil company of New Jersey, Canadian Pacific Railway company, Union Pacific and the Standard Oil company of California.

Two or three other companies inside of another twelve months will move up into this class. Twenty-two corporations at present have an invested capital of from $500,000,000 to $999,000,000; forty-three corporations from $250,000,000 to $499,000,000; while 101 corporations have capital of from $100,000,000 to $249,000,000.

REAL HOME TALENT

THE recent play put on by David Goodnature of Brainerd entitled, "Eyes of Love," and the play, "The Youngest," presented by the high school, back up the assertion often made in town that we have the talent which can so shape home talent as to present finished versions. In fact, our home talent when directed by home people often shows a higher degree of success than when plays are put on by the roving directors from outside, whose only recommendation in some cases is that they carry a stock of costumes and that they make a business of directing plays.

No finer plays have been seen in Brainerd for a long period than "The Eyes of Love" and "The Youngest." Every detail was looked after with professional care and pride.

We congratulate home talent players and their directors for the genuine successes achieved.

FIVE hundred editors and publishers of Minnesota community newspapers and their wives will attend the annual convention of the Minnesota Editorial association at St. Paul Friday and Saturday. Prominent speakers include Governor Theodore Christianson, Dr. W. J. Mayo of Rochester, and Edwin Funk of the Rogers, Arkansas, Democrat, president of the National Editorial association.

DURING the year just past authorities state that railroad taxes were higher, in proportion to total earnings, than at any other time in our history.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

IRENE ROBELINE married Guinn Holden, young and handsome Texas minister, shortly after Lillith, his first wife, died, leaving an infant Lillith. Irene, secretly in love with Guinn, had seen him practically snatched away by the beautiful blonde and coquettish Lillith, who had boasted of her ability to make Guinn propose to her. Instead of the love that Irene expected to enjoy to complete her happiness, she found always the unseen barrier of the dead Lillith haunting Holden's mind and enthroned in his heart. He spoiled the child, granting her every wish and fancy. Even when Irene's child came he referred to her as "Lillith's little sister." This was Tina, who grows up a dark-eyed, lovely child, sweet and thoughtful, but conscious of her secondary position to the beautiful Lillith in her father's heart. Irene ponders this poignant problem that has persisted during the years of marriage to Holden. Even Ross and Lundy, the boys, and little Patricia, the youngest, were similarly regarded by their father. How supplant this "golden ghost" of the glorious dead Lillith was made doubly difficult because of the grown-up Lillith, who had not only her mother's beauty, but greater intellect to support her selfish desires and strengthen her hold on her father's affection. Graduated from college, Lillith tells her father she wishes to study voice in New York. Tina, too, wants to pursue an art course. "Lillith is the older," the father would reply when Irene remonstrated. Tina, however, was the favorite of Will Lundy, town doctor, who had been in love with Irene. Tina, hurt when Lillith doesn't want her at Roger Devereaux's house party, returns to Summer school. Lillith announces her engagement to Roger.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

IRENE probed her own soul, as she stood there in the firelight. Had she been as good a mother to Lillith as she might? Now that the child was going out of the house, she longed to envelop her in love, to shelter her from every trial and temptation, to protect her from disappointment and hardship.

"We'll give you the very nicest wedding we can manage, dear," she said unsteadily.

"Yes, whatever you want," Guinn promised.

Lillith smiled with faint amusement. "I'm afraid that wouldn't be possible."

The father's eyes were anxious. "What is it that you want, Lillith?"

There was light scorn in her tone as she answered him: "Oh, all sorts of foolish things. Limousines with liveried chauffeurs, yachts lying at anchor in far harbors, great houses to live in and wonderful old gardens."

He laughed in relief, as he kissed her cheek. "I see you're only fooling, just dreaming romantic dreams, I was afraid at first there was something you really wanted and couldn't have. Those are only—possessions."

"To a preacher, yes. To a vain young girl, maybe not."

"Then you shouldn't have chosen a paragon to be born in," he said indulgently.

Her red lips made a moue. "Maybe I shouldn't—if I'd been asked."

Irene watched her jealousy, resentful of the hurt she gave to Guinn. Was the girl deliberately cruel, or was she maybe not quite satisfied with this coming marriage, and so willing to inflict pain because she felt it?

She could tell nothing of Lillith's inner motives or feelings, for girls were so secretive about love affairs. But this was a sensible marriage, a fortunate chance that even Lillith with her beauty and her pride ought to be happy in. If only Tina could do as well when her turn came.

When Tina came home at Christmas time, Irene watched her keen eyes that concealed their scrutiny. Did she by any chance care a bit for Roger? The mother studied the girl surreptitiously, as a physician might feel a pulse or take blood pressure without letting the patient know.

But she sighed with relief when she saw Tina's unclouded brow, heard her old gay laugh.

"Oh, Lil, how perfectly marvelous that you and Roger are going to be married. There isn't a man in the world I'd rather have for a brother than Roger."

That couldn't be acting, for Tina was no actress at all. Everything was all right.

Lillith, of her own accord, asked her to be her maid of honor. "But you must do something to get those freckles off your nose, because I don't want a maid of honor speckled like a grinner hen."

"But, Lil, wouldn't you rather have Roger's sister? She's so pretty—or some one of your classmates?" There was a wistful doubt in her tone, and her brown eyes looked afraid of being hurt.

"I never could have forgotten such a good-looking young man as you," she declared. "You must have grown up since I saw you."

His eyes teased her and his whole face softened with affection.

She gave a little gay shout. "Why, you're Dan! Dan Ripley!"

Instantly she had snatched his hand in hers. "You've been gone so long, Dan!"

"Eight years and more," he said. "Quite a Ulysses for my age. Military school and camps in

"No, you're the one," said Lillith casually.

So Tina, more thrilled over the wedding than Lillith was, began to suggest plans for the big event.

When Lillith was married and in her own home, Tina should have more thought from them all, Irene told herself. Tina was so loving, always being overlooked, and always ready to forgive. It was hard luck to be the younger sister of breath-taking beauty.

Even Sheba seemed pleased at the prospect of Lillith's marriage. Was it because her leaving would give Tina a fair chance at last?

Roger came for Christmas Day, and seemed like an older son in the family already. Guinn had to admit liking him, even if he was going to take Lillith away. He was recklessly in love. Lillith was undemonstrative, but she never had been sentimental, Irene reminded herself; she maintained toward Roger the same cool aloofness she had shown everyone all her life, a delicate indifference that made him pursue her the more ardently.

Life was like that, Irene reflected. The engagement was announced on Christmas night, at a dinner given by Mrs. Randall, a wealthy member of the congregation. After dinner a number of other guests came in for a reception in honor of the bride-to-be, and Lillith quipped it as the center of a crowd showering good wishes upon her and congratulations on Roger.

Her frock of pale green chiffon seemed more like sea foam than like a convenient garment, and her yellow hair was a living radiance, her eyes were bright with their lurking laughter, and her cheeks had the delicate flush that shows inside a sea shell. A string of pearls, Roger's Christmas gift, encircled her white throat. Irene said to herself that she had never seen anyone in the world so beautiful. Tina was sweeter and dearer, but Lillith was incomparably lovely. Roger had the look of a man who cannot believe his good fortune, but rejoices at it with his whole heart.

Irene saw across the room from her a tall, handsome young man, seemingly about twenty-two or three, who watched her with recognition in his eyes, humorous inquiry as to how long she meant to ignore him, but who he was she had no idea. She smilingly summoned him to her to set the matter straight.

"Ought I to know you?" she demanded with her forthright gaiety.

"I should say you ought! I'm scalded with grief that you've forgotten me."

His gray eyes looked laughingly into hers, his chestnut head lifted itself slightly, and he challenged her powers of memory.

"I never could have forgotten such a good-looking young man as you," she declared. "You must have grown up since I saw you."

His eyes teased her and his whole face softened with affection.

She gave a little gay shout. "Why, you're Dan! Dan Ripley!"

Instantly she had snatched his hand in hers. "You've been gone so long, Dan!"

"Eight years and more," he said. "Quite a Ulysses for my age. Military school and camps in Summer, then college and law school, and Europe in Summer."

"I've thought of you a thousand times, Dan, and wondered if you'd never come home. I want to hear about everything. When can you come to see us?" Her voice had the enthusiasm of a girl, and her eyes held material affection for this young fellow she still thought of as a heartless, motherless boy.

"I'm leaving tomorrow—here just for Christmas Day, with Dad. We're going to Mexico together and then for a longer jaunt perhaps."

"I'm glad you're going to be with your father. He needs his boy. Have you seen my girls?" she asked him.

"Just from a distance yet. I wanted to see you the first one of all, because you meant so much to me that time long ago." He was silent an instant and then went on more lightly. "I'm not surprised to hear Lillith's to be married." He laughed. "I always planned to come back and marry one of your girls, you know, because I wanted to adopt you for a mother."

She twinkled her eyes responsively. "I've got two girls yet, one of 'em born after you left. Surely you'll be through with your wanderings by the time she's husband-high."

"All right. You save her for me, and I'll be back one of these days."

She propelled him over to speak to Lillith and Tina. "Girls, this is Dan."

Tina sprang forward, her eyes alight with welcome. "I thought you never were coming back, Dan!"

Lillith appraised his looks, his manner, with her usual poise, and seemed to approve of him when she held out her hand in greeting.

"Wanderer, tell me of your far lands and what you have seen there."

Her clear blue eyes had a dreamy light in them, and she looked more than ever like a sea maiden, with her cool, green gown, her yellow hair and translucent skin.

"In no lands have I seen anything so lovely as you," Dan said with gay insouciance.

"Flatterer! Are you here for long?"

Irene saw the look of the huntress flicker in the girl's blue eyes. He shook his head regretfully. "Off tomorrow for Mexico, and maybe South America."

"For another eight years?"

"Maybe. Quien sabe?"

"Tina, hail and farewell, Ulysses. Happy voyages to you." A smile danced over her lips and flickered in her eyes.

Dan bowed. "And to you. May life bring you captive everything you desire."

She looked at him serenely. "I'm determined that it shall."

Tina spoke teasingly as she glanced at Roger. "She has made a good start."

"I stand for complete subjectivity," said Roger, will mock humility.

"You need to, with Lil," Ross derided him.

The next day Guinn came home late to dinner and announced soberly, "Miss Malvina's dead."

"Poor Miss Malvina!" cried Irene. "She went off suddenly, so she didn't suffer any pain," he said.

"Are you and Mother still residuary legatees?" drawled Lillith.

"Don't speak lightly when she's dead, daughter," he rebuked her.

"I assure you, I never speak lightly of any chance of fortune in our family."

"Miss Malvina's special fantasy was making wills," Irene explained to Roger. "If anyone spoke pleasantly to her, she'd leave him something in her will. Then next week when he did something to displease her she'd make a codicil and cut him off. Everybody has to have some delusion."

"You earned a fortune, Mother, by the way you martyred yourself to save Father," commented Tina.

"Fortunately we never spent our prospects in advance," said Guinn. "The poor old soul will be doing well if she has left enough to bury her."

MARKING ROOFS FOR AERIAL NAVIGATION GUIDES

The Chamber of Commerce recently named a committee to see about marking a suitable roof in Brainerd with the city's name, to aid aerial navigation. This is a commendable undertaking and it is hoped something will be done shortly.

Authoritative information as to proper marking can be gained from a letter recently sent by Edsel B. Ford of the Ford Motor Company to Walter P. Tyrholm, their local dealer. Proper marking is of untold benefit to the air mail pilots, as well as military and civilian pilots traveling across the United States in every direction.

The smaller the town, the greater the need for adequate identification as the small town itself offers little means of identification from the air. The selection of the building to be marked is largely a matter of local conditions and availability. The essential points to be considered are the ease with which the roof can be seen from the air and the location of the building. The roof should be on a building prominently situated. Buildings over which smoke hangs should be avoided.

The railroad station in some cases lends itself ideally to roof marking. The roof selected should preferably be of tile, shingle, tin or other metal, or of slate. A simple block letter in chrome yellow with a dull background, preferably black, should be used in all signs whether painted directly on the roof or not. White paint may be used instead of chrome yellow, but the Department of Commerce prefers the use of chrome yellow as its visibility is slightly greater. The letters should be from ten to twenty feet in height and in no case less than six feet high. The smaller the letters, the more difficult it is to read the name of the town from a safe altitude. A space of one-fourth the height of the letters should be used between the letters.

Beside the name of the town or city, the marking should include an arrow of sufficient size to be easily seen and pointing due North with the letter "N" under or over the arrow shaft. This directional arrow is important as it makes it possible for the pilot to orient himself and determine his directions accurately.

If the town or city has an airport, a smaller arrow in addition to the arrow pointing North may be added. This arrow should point to the airport and will be of much assistance to the pilot in locating the airport. If the airport arrow is used, the numeral designating the number of miles to the airport from the building should be used above the arrow and the letter "M" designating miles placed below the shaft of the arrow. This is the conventional airport designation and makes it plain to the pilot that the arrow designates an airport and gives him the direction and distance.

EUROPE FAILS TO COMMENT

THE European press has paid relatively little attention to the approval of the Kellogg pact by the United States senate. There are two reasons. In the first place, for European countries the signing of a treaty is the most important step. If a treaty is submitted to parliament for debate—which is not a legal requirement—the only way to halt ratification would be to vote the government out of office. Such procedure would be unusual. In the second place, there was hope in some European circles that the senate would either disapprove the treaty or load it down with reservations strong enough to make it ineffective. That would have provided one more opportunity for denunciation of the United States and charges of American insincerity. Some European papers said the usual things anyhow, from force of habit. But on the whole, the step in establishing the treaty which is regarded in the United States as of such vital importance created little comment.—Mankato Free Press.

BILLION-DOLLAR COMPANIES

JOHN F. SINCLAIR in the American Review of Reviews: Before the war there were no billion dollar corporations in the world. Only one—the United States Steel corporation—approached it. Now there are nine of these corporations with invested capital of $1,000,000,000 each.

Here they are: United States Steel corporation, American Telephone & Telegraph company, Southern Pacific company, Pennsylvania Railroad company, New York Central railroad, Standard Oil company of New Jersey, Canadian Pacific Railway company, Union Pacific and the Standard Oil company of California.

Two or three other companies inside of another twelve months will move up into this class. Twenty-two corporations at present have an invested capital of from $500,000,000 to $999,000,000; forty-three corporations from $250,000,000 to $499,000,000; while 101 corporations have capital of from $100,000,000 to $249,000,000.

REAL HOME TALENT

THE recent play put on by David Goodnature of Brainerd entitled, "Eyes of Love," and the play, "The Youngest," presented by the high school, back up the assertion often made in town that we have the talent which can so shape home talent as to present finished versions. In fact, our home talent when directed by home people often shows a higher degree of success than when plays are put on by the roving directors from outside, whose only recommendation in some cases is that they carry a stock of costumes and that they make a business of directing plays.

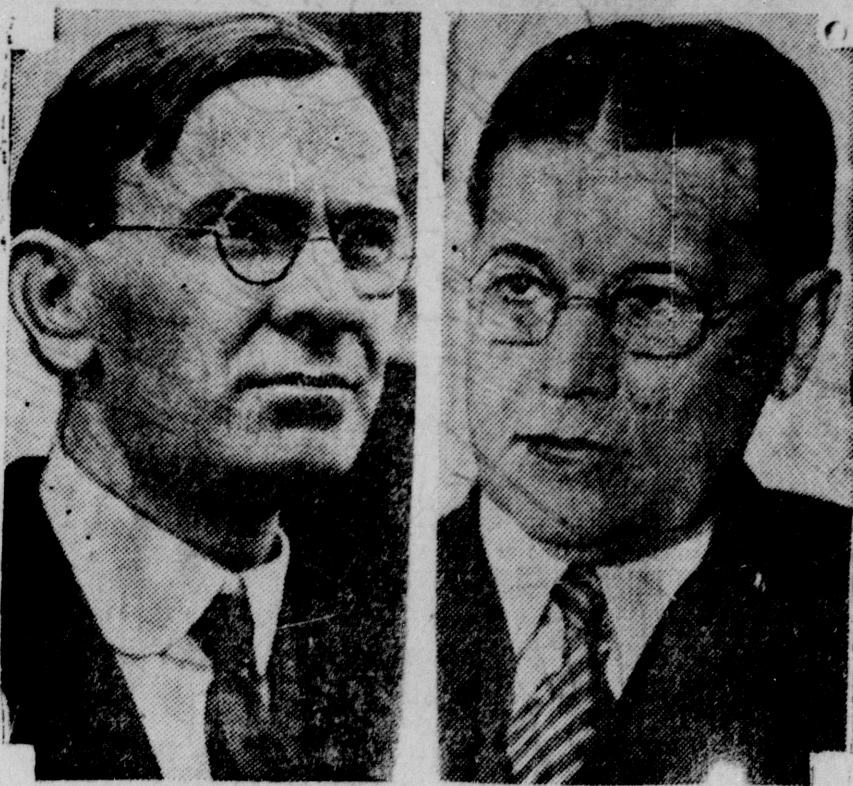

No finer plays have been seen in Brainerd for a long period than "The Eyes of Love" and "The Youngest." Every detail was looked after with professional care and pride.

We congratulate home talent players and their directors for the genuine successes achieved.

Prominent speakers include Governor Theodore Christianson, Dr. W. J. Mayo of Rochester, and Edw. Funk of the Rogers, Arkansas, Democrat, president of the National Editorial association.

DURING the year just past authorities state that railroad taxes were higher, in proportion to total earnings, than at any other time in our history.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

IRENE ROBELINE married Quinn Holden, young and handsome Texas minister, shortly after Lilith, his first wife, died, leaving an infant Lilith. Irene, secretly in love with Quinn, had seen him practically snatched away by the beautiful blonde and coquettish Lilith, who had boasted of her ability to make Quinn propose to her. Instead of the love that Irene expected to enjoy to complete her happiness, she found always the unseen barrier of the dead Lilith haunting Holden's mind and enthroned in his heart. He spoiled the child, granting her every wish and fancy. Even when Irene's child came he referred to her as "Lilith's little sister." This was Tina, who grows up a dark-eyed, lovely child, sweet and thoughtful, but conscious of her secondary position to the beautiful Lilith in her father's heart. Irene ponders this poignant problem that has persisted during the years of marriage to Holden. Even Ross and Lundy, the boys, and little Patricia, the youngest, were similarly regarded by their father. How to supplant this "golden ghost" of the glorious dead Lilith was made doubly difficult because of the grown-up Lilith, who had not only her mother's beauty, but greater intellect to support her selfish desires and strengthen her hold on her father's affection. Graduated from college, Lilith tells her father she wishes to study voice in New York. Tina, too, wants to pursue an art course. "Lilith is the older," the father would reply when Irene remonstrated. Tina, however, was the favorite of Will Lundy, town doctor, who had been in love with Irene. Tina, hurt when Lilith doesn't want her at Roger Devereaux's house party, returns to Summer school. Lilith announces her engagement to Roger.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

IRENE probed her own soul, as she stood there in the firelight. Had she been as good a mother to Lilith as she might? Now that the child was going out of the house, she longed to envelop her in love, to shelter her from every trial and temptation, to protect her from disappointment and hardship.

"We'll give you the very nicest wedding we can manage, dear," she said unsteadily.

"Yes, whatever you want," Quinn promised.

Lilith smiled with faint amusement. "I'm afraid that wouldn't be possible."

The father's eyes were anxious. "What is it that you want, Lilith?"

There was light scorn in her tone as she answered him: "Oh, all sorts of foolish things. Limousines with liveried chauffeurs, yachts lying at anchor in far harbors, great houses to live in and wonderful old gardens."

He laughed in relief, as he kissed her cheek. "I see you're only fooling, just dreaming romantic dreams, I was afraid at first there was something you really wanted and couldn't have. Those are only—possessions."

"To a preacher, yes. To a vain young girl, maybe not."

"Then you shouldn't have chosen a paragon to be born in," he said indulgently.

Her red lips made a moue. "Maybe I shouldn't—if I'd been asked."

Irene watched her jealously, resentful of the hurt she gave to Quinn. Was the girl deliberately cruel, or was she maybe not quite satisfied with this coming marriage, and so willing to inflict pain because she felt it?

She could tell nothing of Lilith's inner motives or feelings, for girls were so secretive about love affairs. But this was a sensible marriage, a fortunate chance that even Lilith with her beauty and her pride ought to be happy in. If only Tina could do as well when her turn came.

When Tina came home at Christmas time, Irene watched her with keen eyes that concealed their scrutiny. Did she by any chance care a bit for Roger? The mother studied the girl surreptitiously, as a physician might feel a pulse or take blood pressure without letting the patient know.

But she sighed with relief when she saw Tina's unclouded brow, heard her old gay laugh.

"Oh, Lil, how perfectly marvelous that you and Roger are going to be married. There isn't a man in the world I'd rather have for a brother than Roger."

That couldn't be acting, for Tina was no actress at all. Everything was all right.

Lilith, of her own accord, asked her to be her maid of honor. "But you must do something to get those freckles off your nose, because I don't want a maid of honor speckled like a guinea hen."

"But, Lil, wouldn't you rather have Roger's sister? She's so pretty—or some one of your classmates?" There was a wistful doubt in her tone, and her brown eyes looked afraid of being hurt.

"No, you're the one," said Lilith casually.

So Tina, more thrilled over the wedding than Lilith was, began to suggest plans for the big event.

When Lilith was married and in her own home, Tina should have more thought from them all, Irene told herself. Tina was so loving, always being overlooked, and always ready to forgive. It was hard luck to be the younger sister of breath-taking beauty.

Even Sheba seemed pleased at the prospect of Lilith's marriage. Was it because her leaving would give Tina a fair chance at last?

Roger came for Christmas Day, and seemed like an older son in the family already. Quinn had to admit liking him, even if he was going to take Lilith away. He was recklessly in love. Lilith was undemonstrative, but she never had been sentimental, Irene reminded herself; she maintained toward Roger the same cool aloofness she had shown everyone all her life, a delicate indifference that made him pursue her the more ardently.

Life was like that, Irene reflected. The engagement was announced on Christmas night, at a dinner given by Mrs. Randall, a wealthy member of the congregation. After dinner a number of other guests came in for a reception in honor of the bride-to-be, and Lilith quipped it as the center of a crowd showering good wishes upon her and congratulations on Roger.

Her frock of pale green chiffon seemed more like sea foam than like a convenient garment, and her yellow hair was living radiance, her eyes were bright with their lurking laughter, and her cheeks had the delicate flush that shows inside a sea shell. A string of pearls, Roger's Christmas gift, encircled her white throat. Irene said to herself that she had never seen anyone in the world so beautiful. Tina was sweeter and dearer, but Lilith was incomparably lovely. Roger had the look of a man who cannot believe his good fortune, but rejoices at it with his whole heart.

Irene saw across the room from her tall, handsome young man, seemingly about twenty-two or there, who watched her with recognition in his eyes, humorous inquiry as to how long she meant to ignore him, but who he was she had no idea. She smilingly summoned him to her to set the matter straight.

"Ought I to know you?" she demanded with her forthright gaiety. "I should say you ought. I'm scalded with grief that you've forgotten me."

His gray eyes looked laughingly into hers, his chestnut head lifted itself slightly, and he challenged her powers of memory.

"I never could have forgotten such a good-looking young man as you," she declared. "You must have grown up since I saw you."

His eyes teased her and his whole face softened with affection.

She gave a little gay shout. "Why, you're Dan! Dan Ripley!"

Instantly she had snatched his hand in hers. "You've been gone so long, Dan!"

"Eight years and more," he said. "Quite a Ulysses for my age. Military school and camps in

"I've thought of you a thousand times, Dan, and wondered if you'd never come home. I want to hear about everything. When can you come to see us?" Her voice had the enthusiasm of a girl, and her eyes held material affection for this young fellow she still thought of as a heartick, motherless boy.

"I'm leaving tomorrow—here just for Christmas Day, with Dad. We're going to Mexico together and then for a longer jaunt per-haps."

"I'm glad you're going to be with your father. He needs his boy. Have you seen my girls?" she asked him.

"Just from a distance yet. I wanted to see you the first one of all, because you meant so much to me that time long ago." He was silent an instant and then went on more lightly. GIVES LENTEN REGULATIONS

Bishop Thomas A. Welch of Duluth Defines Regulations of Catholic Church

LAW OF ABSTINENCE

Binds All Those Over the Age of 7. Law of Fasting is Enunciated and Made Public

Lenten regulations for the Duluth diocese, issued by the Rt. Rev. Thomas A. Welch, Bishop of Duluth, were read at St. Francis Catholic church last Sunday and include:

"The law of abstinence binds all those over the age of seven. The law of fasting applies to all who are over twenty-one years of age and have not yet entered upon their sixtieth year, if they be not exempted by reason of their health or occupation.

"On Wednesdays and Fridays and on Ember Saturday abstinence is prescribed. On these days flesh meat is not allowed, nor broth or soup made from meat.

"On fast days, those bound to fast are allowed one full meal, at or after mid-day. In addition, they are allowed two light meals, one of about eight ounces, at which butter, cheese, eggs or fish may be taken in small quantities; the other of two or three ounces, at which a little butter may be taken.

"Except on abstinence days, both meat and fish are allowed at the chief meal.

"By a special Indult granted to the bishops of the United States, working people who cannot easily observe the common law of the church may eat meat on all days of fast and abstinence throughout the year, including the Lenten Season, except Friday, Ash Wednesday, the Wednesday in Holy Week, Good Friday, the forenoon of Holy Saturday and Christmas Eve. This dispensation includes not only the individual working man in whose favor it is granted, but all the members of his family as well.

First to Cross Australia

The first journey across Australia was made in 1844-45, by Frederick Wilhelm Ludwig Leichhardt, who went from Germany to Australia in 1841. Settling out from Darling Downs, in the south of Queensland, he made his way to Port Essington (Northern Territory), the most northerly tip of Australia.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY SCORES TRIUMPH

Park Theatre Crowded to Doors as Students Present "The Youngest"

REMARKABLE ACTING SHOWN

Plot Retains Interest of Audience From Opening Curtain; Specialties Popular

An inferiority complex of "The Youngest" caused by the continual hankering of the rest of the family was smashed to smithereens through the capable maneuvering of Nancy Blake acted superbly by Miss Mildred Prentice despite the unwilling cooperation of the subject, Richard Winslow, the downtrodden youngest who wishes to write, acted to perfection by William McClenahan at the senior class play last evening.

The egotistical superiority of Oliver Winslow, the oldest brother who attempted to manage the pin factory business and the family, taken by Carl Zapffe, Jr., in his customary efficient manner, was blown sky high by Richard's determination to assert his rights and of the subsequent destruction by him of Oliver's prepared script.

That worthless script demonstrated Oliver's inability as a leader and brought Richard to the fore of the battle ground. His reception by the citizens of the pin factory town was deafening.

Moreover, a statute of New York state had an important part in bringing the situation to a pleasing climax.

The high school production presented at the Park theatre was a sell-out. Every seat in the theatre was occupied even to an overflowing of the "boxes."

From the opening curtain to the closing scene the audience watched intently. In all, "The Youngest" was exceptionally well presented and enthusiastically received.

Each of the remaining members of the cast deserve congratulations. Miss Evodia Carlson did not forget throughout it all that she was Charlotte Winslow, the harassed mother of the family but made happy through the reuniting of the entire family on a basis of equality. Ralph Anderson as Mark Winslow, Malcolm Ellison as Alan Martin and Carl Zapffe, Jr., were on the set principally in tuxedos. Malcolm Ellison has a delightful accent which ably fitted his role as the attorney of Richard Winslow.

Miss Helene Marie Stadlbauer who has filled more gentle roles in other local productions most satisfactory took another role last evening, one which she demonstrated she was equally capable of playing. She was Augusta Winslow Martin, bored and sarcastic to the finish.

Miss Ellen Berglund, as Martha "Muff" Winslow, the youngest girl, who sympathizes with Richard comes in for her share of the laurels for her acting was genuine and appealing.

Amanda Holmes took a minor part but she typified Katie, the maid, adeptly.

The specialties offered under the direction of Miss Cora Rickard were in themselves a treat.

The high school orchestra with 12 members played a group of five selections as cures: "Victory," "Star of the Orient," "Ole South," "The Flying Ace," "Yester Eve."

The orchestra personnel follows: Violins—Victor Bourgeois, Madge Clark, Murrell Gooderger, Harriet Halverson, Harold Moe, Donald Nelson, Muisto Pohjola, John Zander.

Clarinets—Louis Clausen, Howard Hass, Carl Holvick.

Cornets—Maurice Larson, Hattie Zawadsky.

Eb Alto Saxophone—Roland Jenkins.

Baritone—Aileen Barnes.

Trombones—Dorothy Schrader, Howard Gile.

Drums and Traps—Howard Beggs.

Pianist—Miss Josephine Graham.

Musical novelties, in charge of Mr. LaMeter, featured a girls harmony team, Evelyn Fink, Ethel Finne; and Allen Evans, accordion wizard.

A chorus of ten girls with Miss Katherine Sheets as soloist presented "I Can't Do That Sum" and "Toyland."

Members of the chorus were: Misses Margaret Graft, Bladys Hegstad, Edith Daugherty, Marie McPherson, Florence Abrahamson, Dorothy Peterson, Hildegarde Holm, Lucille Spencer, Marjorie Forsberg, Dorothy Kianey.

Instrumental in the success of the play were Miss Mary Tornstrom, principal of the school, as director, Guy Hawkins, business manager, F. W. Elden.

FLORIDA MAY ANNUALLY STAGE BIG FIGHT

IDEA VOICED AND APPROVED BY PROMOTERS

POINT TO COMING SUCCESS OF
SHARKEY-STIRLING
AFFAIR

WEST COAST BIDS HALF MILLION
FOR HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT
NEXT WINTER

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 13.—(U.P.)—The possibility that Florida might become the setting for an annual heavyweight fight of major importance has been voiced by all those concerned in the promotion of the forthcoming Sharkey-Stirling affair. Richard Hoyt, mild-mannered but energetic principal stockholder in Madison Square Garden, is the latest to admit his approval of the plan.

Only a day or two ago the west coast made an energetic bid for a heavyweight bout next winter, offering $500,000 for a contest similar to that in which Sharkey and Stirling will engage here February 27.

Jack Dempsey, Hoyt and William F. Carey, vice-president of Madison Square Garden, all felt that two heavyweight fights each summer constitute the limit of cash customer endurance in the north.

The proposal to hold an important heavyweight contest here each winter might prove feasible but those whose enthusiasm is aroused over the forthcoming affair overlook the relative importance of the principals. Down here there is little talk of Young Stirling or Jack Sharkey.

Dempsey, Bill Carey and the others who have pitched in to make the affair a success are the ones who occupy the spotlight.

If the bout proves as great attraction as it has been steamed up to be, there is no reason why Florida—possibly Miami Beach again—might not attract another next winter. Certainly, there is everything else to bring the sporting element here.

The dog races are availing themselves of the mutual betting machines once more, one has only to turn the corner from the Miami Beach Kennel club to enter an open gambling house, while beer, wine and spirits are to be had for the asking.

New York, Feb. 13.—(U.P.)—Less traveling and more games at home will be the future football policy of Notre Dame.

With this program in mind a new stadium costing $750,000 and seating between 50,000 and 60,000 persons will be built at South Bend, Ind., Father Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the University, told the Notre Dame Alumni Association of New York, in a luncheon in his honor.

PIRATES ARE BOLSTERING UP THE WEAK SPOTS

LAST SEASON CLUB HAD BUNCH OF HARDEST HITTERS IN LEAGUE

WEAK DEFENSIVELY AT FIRST,
FIELD

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Feb. 13.—No National League club has made more efforts to bolster the weak spots than the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates had one of the hardest hitting teams in the league last season, but they were weak defensively at first, shortstop and left field. The pitching staff, too, was far from stable.

With a tighter defense and stronger pitching, the Pirates look like a pennant contender from April to October.

Three of the Pirates' recruits have all indications of developing into first-year stars. Steve Swetonic, the young right-hander from Indianapolis, is counted on as a regular member of the pitching staff. He won 19 games and lost eight last season, and turned in three victories in the little world series against Rochester. Larry French, who won 17 games and lost 11 for Portland, comes up highly recommended for his brilliant work in the Pacific Coast League.

The third youngster who is billed for a regular berth is Jimmy Stroner, who was regarded as the best player in the Western League. He batted .367 for Wichita, including 41 home runs, 19 triples, and 42 doubles; and stole 11 bases.

Veterans will form the backbone of the pitching. They include Jess Petty, the silver-haired southpaw acquired along with Riconda from Brooklyn in exchange for Glenn Wright; Burleigh Grimes, Lee Meadows, trying a comeback; Ray Kremer, Carmen Hill, Joe Dawson and Fred Fussell.

Other newcomers are Henry Meine, a right-hander from Kansas City; Leon Chagnon from the Lynn, New England League club; Homer Blankenship from Dallas, and Glenn Spencer from the Columbia, South Atlantic League.

Charley Hargreaves and Ralston Hemsley will battle for the first string catching berth, and Claude Linton from the Decatur Three-I League club, John O'Connell from the Canton Central League club, and Roy Spencer from Indianapolis, will vie for the third place.

Early Sheely, formerly with the Chicago White Sox, is slated to play first base. He batted .382 for Sacramento last season, getting 240 hits and driving in 102 runs.

Sparky Adams will be shifted back to second base, and Pie Traynor will be moved from third to shortstop. Dick Bartell who played splendidly at second base and shortstop during the last part of last season, may upset these plans and win himself a regular berth in the infield.

Stroner is scheduled to complete the infield at third base, but will have competition from Riconda.

The Waner brothers will occupy two of the outfield berths, but there are three candidates for the left field position. George Grantham, who played first base last season, will compete with Adam Comorosky and Fred Brickell for that place. Carl Frey, who batted .329 for Wichita, also will be a candidate for an outfield berth.

Manager Donie Bush has announced the following tentative line-up:

Catchers — Hemsley, Hargreaves, Spencer.

Pitchers — Hill, Grimes, Kremer, Dawson, Fussell, Brame, French, Swetonic, Petty, Meadows, Blankenship.

Infield — Sheely at first; Adams at second; Traynor at shortstop; Stroner at third. Riconda and Bartell, reserves.

STATE HIGHWAY FUND SHOWS A GREAT DECREASE

MODERN TENDENCY TOWARD HEAVIER AND BETTER CARS
IS CAUSE

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER
C. M. BABCOCK IN AN-NOUNCEMENT

St. Paul, Feb. 13.—(U.P.)—The modern tendency toward heavier and better automobiles has resulted in decreased revenue to the state highway fund, C. M. Babcock, road commissioner, announced here today.

In 1928, Babcock said, the state received $115,617 less from motor taxes than in 1927, due to the tendency of Minnesota motorists to purchase heavier cars at a reasonable price, and in part to the reclassification of automobiles.

Total registration of A cars slumped from 265,457 in 1927. Babcock explained, to 255,532 in 1928 while registration of B cars was increased from 299,560 in 1927 to 327,938 in the following year.

The motor vehicle taxes in 1928, the commissioner pointed out, were $10,054,671, while in 1927 they were $10,170,288.

Busses and trucks were also larger but fewer last year, Babcock continued and since the taxes are based on list prices the net revenue was lowered.

Due to a change in the dates of the regional tournament to March 7, 8 and 9, the district tournament was set for an earlier date.

Such matters as selection of referees, judges and other officials, basketballs to be used, trophies, and readjustment of games in the present conference will come before the meeting for decision.

It is understood that Referee Lewis of Moose Lake will be asked to officiate at the tournament games.

CROSBY-IRONTON

The same group of athletes who carried off honors at Bemidji and Pine River last week will continue their quest into stronger territory this week when they clash with the Crosby-Ironton boys on the latter's floor Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The game should prove to be the best basketball game of the conference season in which the local team has competed.

The locals will also attempt to relieve the sting produced by the decisive victory Crosby-Ironton scored on the Brainerd team earlier in the season.

Several hundred Brainerd fans are expected to make the trip to back the home boys.

FLORIDA MAY ANNUALLY STAGE BIG FIGHT

IDEA VOICED AND APPROVED BY PROMOTERS

POINT TO COMING SUCCESS OF SHARKEY-STIBLING AFFAIR

WEST COAST BIDS HALF MILLION FOR HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT NEXT WINTER

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 13.—(UP)—The possibility that Florida might become the setting for an annual heavyweight fight of major importance has been voiced by all those concerned in the promotion of the forthcoming Sharkey-Stibling affair.

Richard Hoyt, mild-mannered but energetic principal stockholder in Madison Square Garden, is the latest to admit his approval of the plan.

Only a day or two ago the west coast made an energetic bid for a heavyweight bout next winter, offering $500,000 for a contest similar to that in which Sharkey and Stibling will engage here February 27.

Jack Dempsey, Hoyt and William F. Carey, vice-president of Madison Square Garden, all felt that two heavyweight fights each summer constitute the limit of cash customer endurance in the north.

The proposal to hold an important heavyweight contest here each winter might prove feasible but those whose enthusiasm is aroused over the forthcoming affair overlook the relative importance of the principals.

Down here there is little talk of Young Stibling or Jack Sharkey. Dempsey, Bill Carey and the others who have pitched in to make the affair a success are the ones who occupy the spotlight.

If the bout proves as great attraction as it has been steamed up to be, there is no reason why Florida—possibly Miami Beach again—might not attract another next winter. Certainly, there is everything else to bring the sporting element here.

The dog races are availing themselves of the mutual betting machines once more, one has only to turn the corner from the Miami Beach Kennel club to enter an open gambling house, while beer, wine and spirits are to be had for the asking.

LESS TRAVELING, MORE HOME GAMES FOR NOTRE DAME

NEW POLICY ENUNCIATED, NEW STADIUM TO BE BUILT

"ACADEMICALLY NOT SOUND TO HAVE ROVING BAND OF ATHLETES"

New York, Feb. 13.—(UP)—Less traveling and more games at home will be the future football policy of Notre Dame.

With this program in mind a new stadium costing $750,000 and seating between 50,000 and 60,000 persons will be built at South Bend, Ind., Father Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the University, told the Notre Dame Alumni Association of New York, in a luncheon in his honor.

"Academically it is not sound to have a band of roving athletes," he said. "The new stadium will give us the means for keeping our football team at home."

The Notre Dame eleven traveled from coast to coast last season.

REGIONAL DATE FIXED MARCH 7, 8 AND 9; LEWIS FAVORED AS DISTRICT REFEREE

Details of the district basketball tournament scheduled at the Crosby-Ironton gymnasium February 28, March 1 and 2 will be worked out at a meeting of the district committee at the Chamber of Commerce rooms tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Earl Van Dusen, Little Falls, F. E. Lurton, Aitkin, and W. C. Cobb, of Brainerd, each superintendents of the schools in their respective towns and city, will conduct the meeting. Superintendents of schools in other towns of the district have been invited to attend.

Due to a change in the dates of the regional tournament to March 7, 8 and 9, the district tournament was set for an earlier date.

Such matters as selection of referees, judges and other officials, basketballs to be used, trophies, and re-adjustment of games in the present conference will come before the meeting for decision.

It is understood that Referee Lewis of Moose Lake will be asked to officiate at the tournament games.

B. H. S. CAGE SQUAD WILL ENTER RANGE TERRITORY FRIDAY

SAME LINE-UP USED AGAINST BEMIDJI, PINE RIVER TO TAKE FLOOR

HUNDREDS OF BRAINERD FANS ARE TO FOLLOW TEAM TO CROSBY-IRONTON

The same group of athletes who carried off honors at Bemidji and Pine River last week will continue their quest into stronger territory this week when they clash with the Crosby-Ironton boys on the latter's floor Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The game should prove to be the best basketball game of the conference season in which the local team has competed.

The locals will also attempt to relieve the sting produced by the decisive victory Crosby-Ironton scored on the Brainerd team earlier in the season.

Several hundred Brainerd fans are expected to make the trip to back the home boys.
